POLITICS IN WASHINGTON.

REJOICINGS OVER THE VICTORY IN OREGON.

GAIN OF A REPUBLICAN SENATOR.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The National Republican Congressional Committee is actively preparing for the campaign. The first object is to raise money, and a committee has been appointed to co-operate with a similar committee on the part of the National Committee, which is to meet in New York July 1.

THE OREGON ELECTION.

The Congressional Committee did very important work in securing the success in Oregon, having sent some $5000 for the purchase of campaign documents, expense of speakers, and other incidentals to that state. The returns from Oregon are much fuller even than has been hitherto reported. The chairman of the Oregon Republican state committee telegraphs here that the majority on the state ticket is 2000, the largest majority ever given in this state to the Republicans. The Republicans have a majority of five on joint ballot in the Legislature, which insures the election of a United States Senator to succeed Grover, whose term expires March 4, 1883.

MUD THROWING UNPROFITABLE.

The Democrats are already discovering that their mud campaign will not prove successful. They find that while Garfield immediately returned the money he had received back to the treasury, that political jurist, Lyman Trumbull, kept every cent of his.

OHIO TO STICK FOR THURMAN AT CINCINNATI.

Senator Thurman, before leaving here last night for Columbus, where he will await the returns from the Cincinnati Convention, said that Ohio would vote solid to the end so long as there was a chance of nominating him. Mr. Thurman has had a private wire established at his house at Columbus, by which he will communicate with his managers at Cincinnati.

A GRANT MAN FOR GARFIELD.

George C. Gorham, one of the most disappointed of the Grant leaders, starts soon for California to work cheerfully, he says, for Garfield and Arthur. Referring to the alleged popularity of Justice Field on the Pacific coast, Mr. Gorham says that Garfield could beat him without any possible doubt, as whatever may be Field's view on the Chinese question he is closely allied to monopolies, which are hated on that coast.

SENATOR CONKLING CALLS ON GEN. GARFIELD.

Senator Conkling is reported to have made a social call upon Gen. Garfield at the Riggs House yesterday afternoon. Gen. Garfield leaves for home tomorrow.

DON CAMERON AND THE PRESIDENT.

AN IDLE THREAT.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Senator Cameron presented the confirmation of General Hartranft as collector of the port of Philadelphia under the impression that the tenure of office act would preclude his appointment.

The President, under advice of the Attorney-General based on a decision of Secretary Evarts made to President Johnson, today again appointed him. Cameron threatens to make war on the Administration. The President says he is not alarmed at any such threats.

SPEAKER RANDALL ON TILDEN.

ATTITUDE OF THE SOUTHERN DELEGATES.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Speaker Randall, who recently visited Tilden at his instance says that in all his talk with him he never intimated his purpose to withdraw from the contest, but on the contrary left the impression that the Cincinnati convention would do him full justice.

The Speaker is of the opinion that he will be nominated, believing him to be the strongest man. He holds, with the great mass of the Democratic party, that he is not only entitled to it, but that it is essential to the vindication of the great wrong perpetrated in 1876.

Southern delegates who have arrived here, now that Seymour has withdrawn from the contest, are disposed to press Bayard, but this will in no manner embarrass the choice of whoever the North may consider the most available man.

GENERAL GARFIELD'S MOVEMENTS.

PROPOSES TO VISIT NEW ENGLAND.—IS CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—General Garfield leaves tomorrow morning at eight o'clock, via Harrisburg, for his home. He expects to remain there most of the time. He has received a number of invitations to visit various places where celebrations are to take place shortly, but at present he has been compelled to decline them. Later in the season he hopes to be able to gratify his many friends. He says he will probably visit Pennsylvania, New York and New England some time during the summer or early fall. He anticipates a warm and exciting canvass, but feels confident of success.

PRESIDENT BABCOCK'S REPORT.

HE VISITS THE WRECK OF THE BURNED STEAMER NARRAGANSETT.

President D. S. Babcock, of the Stonington line, makes the following report of the condition of the wreck:

I arrived at the wreck at seven A. M. June 17; nearly top high water. Found the Coast Wrecking Company at work on one side and the New London Wrecking Company on the other, each with a schooner and divers getting out cargo. They report that they expect to get all the cargo out by Saturday night. Found the upper works of the vessel all gone, having burned off, and what was not burned, broken up and washed away. The hog frame on the port side was burned entirely off, only the extreme ends remaining. On the starboard side the frame was still in but very badly burned. The masts burned the whole length. The heel of the topmast entirely burned off. At high tide all that is above water is a part of the walking beam, which has been badly scorched, and the gallows frame burned as far as can be seen. Divers report cargo all out forward. Everything gone above the cargo deck. Ladies' cabin all gone. The superintendent of the Coast Wrecking Company at my request sent a diver to examine the clerk's office if possible to recover the passenger list. He reported the roof off, desks, drawers and everything gone except the safe, which still remains. Captain Scott examined the starboard side and the midships aft. Reported main stairway covered with debris; found some of the balusters burned, probably fell from above. He also reported the smoke pipes lying on the starboard side on top of freight; would have to move them before getting all the freight out. They all think the sand is washed out by the tide from underneath the boat and that she is gradually settling down in the sand.

THE CINCINNATI CONVENTION

DELEGATES CROWDING TO THE PARTY FEAST.

INTRIGUES FOR A CANDIDATE.—FIELD AND TILDEN UPPERMOST.

CINCINNATI, June 18.—The city is filling up with delegates to the Democratic National Convention. Comparatively speaking, the convention attracts little attention and will in no way compare with the great gathering in Chicago. There is not a quorum present yet of the National Democratic Executive Committee. What the result will be no one seems able to predict with any degree of confidence. Two facts are, however noticeable. One is that there is a strong who will doubtless prove a very strong candidate before the convention. The other is that the party fear the sage of Gramercy Park. There are few that believe that he will content himself with a complimentary vote, and then retire in favor of some younger and better man. It is pretty generally thought that Mr. Tilden feels himself fully competent to fill the desired position, and that he wants the nomination and will get it. There seems to be considerable and little belief that he would decline the nomination if tendered, his many protestations to the contrary notwithstanding. The city is comparatively quiet now. Wait until the New York delegations arrive, then the trouble will begin.

UNDERCURRENT SETTING TOWARDS JUDGE FIELD,

The only earnest work up to this time is being done by the friends of Judge Field, and it seems to be bearing fruit. Of course, when the friends of the other candidates get fairly down to business, much of what they have achieved will be counteracted. The claims of the candidates are put forth by their supporters in this way: On behalf of Judge Field it is claimed that he will get almost the solid with scattering votes from all over the country, and that he is the second choice of a majority of the delegates of the convention, which will give him the nomination when a break occurs. Mr. Tilden's friends claim that he is the logical candidate, and also that the Democracy being forced by the nomination of Mr. Garfield to go to New York for a candidate, his chances have been improved and he is now stronger than ever. They say that Mr. Seymour means to and will not, under any consideration accept: consequently they say it is useless to nominate him. None of the other Eastern candidates but Mr. Tilden, they say, have any strength, and the old man is the only one available.

For Thurman it is claimed that he has Ohio and West Virginia solid, that the South is in sympathy with him, that the opposition to Justice Field on the Pacific coast on account of his opinion in the Pacific Railroad cases will be in Thurman's favor, and that Thurman has scattered votes enough all over the country to make him the strongest candidate. Jewett is put forward as an Ohio man, and that he is not an Ohio man, as a sort of compromise between those who claim that Ohio cannot be carried and those who say it can. He is, they say, just enough of an Ohio man to carry Ohio, and yet sufficiently identified with the East to beat an Eastern man.

DISASTER AT THE YELLOW JACKET MINE, NEVADA.

FALL OF A CAR-LOAD OF TOOLS ON THE HEADS OF EIGHT MEN.

FOUR INSTANTLY KILLED.—OTHERS INJURED.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—A Gold Hill despatch says a terrible accident at the Yellow Jacket mine occurred at half-past eleven o'clock, occasioned by a car-load of tools falling from near the surface to the bottom, where eight men were on a skip. Four were instantly killed, namely, Neil Gallagher, A. L. Quimby, Timothy Wilkins and E. Whitcomb. John Trizona had his thigh broken; H. Williams had his arm cut off; Barney Coyle and Frank Hammond were slightly injured.

A WEALTHY CITIZEN SHOT BY HIS SON.

THREATS MADE TO LYNCH THE MURDERER.

CINCINNATI, June 17.—The Gazette's special says: James Vogus, this morning at Russiaville, Ind., entered the saloon of J. Maas, and without a word of warning fired five shots with a thirty-eight calibre revolver at Jacob Vogus, his father. Four balls struck the victim, one in the neck, one in the shoulder, one in the left side and one in the groin. He cannot live through the night. Young Vogus, after the shooting, went out as quietly as he entered. Five persons saw the shooting and Vogus was arrested. He says he did the act deliberately being crazed over a law suit pending, in which he sued his father for five years wages. Mr. Vogus made his will this afternoon. The property is estimated to be worth seventy-five thousand dollars. Threats have been made to lynch the murderer.

A clergyman asked for a pass on one of the Illinois roads the other day on the plea that he might convert the conductor of the train to Christianity.

THE SURVIVORS OF THE NARRAGANSETT.

AN IMPORTANT MEETING IN BOSTON.

A COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO LOOK AFTER RIGHTS OF THE PASSENGERS.

BOSTON, June 18.—A meeting of the survivors of the ill fated Narragansett, was held in Wesleyan Hall, Boston, yesterday, for the purpose of taking concerted action. The meeting was called to order by L. M. Fredericks, of Boston.

Mr. L. M. Fredericks, one of the prime movers in the project, stated that, after consultation with several of the survivors, he had arrived at the conclusion that a meeting of the survivors should be called for the purpose of taking concerted action in the premises. It had been suggested that the survivors should combine together and sue the company for damages, thereby accomplishing the greatest result at the least possible expense to individuals. An announcement had been made in the papers to the effect that the steamship company had decided to take advantage of a United States law and give the survivors what remains of the Narragansett as redress.

William B. B. Goodsell, of this city, said that, in his opinion, the accident having occurred within two and a half miles of the shore the company was liable for all the damage inflicted upon the passengers; that the "limited liability act," behind which the company proposed to take refuge, applied only to collisions upon the high seas, the vessels being owned by different persons. It was, therefore, his opinion that the act did not interfere with the passengers' rights, and they should not place too much reliance in what they read as to their rights in the premises.

Capt. Hilles, of Salem, a shipmaster of forty five years' experience, said that, in his opinion, the survivors were entitled to damages. During his long experience as a seaman, he never saw such an utter lack of discipline, both on the Narragansett and Stonington.

Mr. George Filkins, of Boston, expressed an opinion that the steamship company was liable as a common carrier, and not as a steamship. He moved that a committee of five be appointed to consider the state of the case and report, either by circular or otherwise, to the survivors at their earliest convenience, and that the committee be authorized to employ counsel to represent the survivors at the inquest to be held at New London.

Mr. M. M. Wallace, of Salem, said that a friend of his, one of the survivors, had already written to Gen. B. F. Butler for the purpose of ascertaining just what their rights were.

Dr. Ingalls, of Winthrop, deprecated the idea of engaging in a long and expensive lawsuit.

A long discussion then followed upon the proposition to engage a lawyer, many of the ladies and gentlemen, including the chairman, seconding disinclined to assume any expense. The question was then divided, and so much of it has referred to the appointment of a committee of five, unanimously adopted. The proposition to employ counsel was not carried. Further debate was indulged in, after which the following named persons were appointed on the committee: George E. Filkins, F. B. Jones of Chelsea, Cornelius Henry of Somerville, A. V. Lynde of Melrose, L. M. Fredericks of Boston and W. N. Wallace of Salem.

The meeting then adjourned subject to the call of the committee.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

Mr. Rufus S. Chelsea, a trustee of Wellesley (Mass.) College, has given $5,000 for a scholarship at that institution.

To become a Christian is not to yield the heart to a superstitious feeling or passing emotion, but to give the life to the noblest purpose that can control it.

The will of the late Peter C. Brooks of Boston gives to the Home for Aged Men, the House of the Good Samaritan and the Children's Hospital in Boston $5,000 each.

The congregations in the city churches are already so much thinned out that some of them have voted to hold but one service. Such congregations do not give their ministers more than eight months for effective work.

The commencement exercises of Bangor Theological Seminary took place last week. This school of the prophets was never better equipped for its work than now, and never turned out, it is said, a better class of candidates for the ministry. The examinations and papers were of a high order.

Nearly two and a half million dollars is what the Methodist Episcopal Church contributed and sent during the last quadrennium on missions. And this sum was nearly equally divided between the home and foreign fields. This does not include over $100,000 spent in heathen lands by the Woman's Missionary Society.

The Sisters of St. Mary, a legally organized society in the Protestant Episcopal Church, are now building a new hospital for children in West Thirty-fourth street, near the corner of Ninth avenue. This building will be known as St. Mary's Free Hospital for Children. Sister Catharine will be in charge of the hospital, and Miss E. Kemble is the treasurer.

The Methodist Recorder, of London has this to say about American missionaries and their work:

"America sends about six hundred missionaries into the foreign field. That they are full of zeal and energy is understood. Americans were the first to enter the open door in Japan. In India, also, their enterprise has been rewarded by conspicuous success. But the amount of labor bestowed for many years by the American churches on the sacred lands included in Asiatic Turkey proves that American missionaries are as capable of patient toil as they are full of holy zeal."

For the consciously funny preacher, Dr. Hall said, he had no sympathy. He did not like the breed. He could not tolerate the man who turned buffoon in the Lord's pulpit and cracked deliberate jokes to raise laughter in the congregation—the sensational minister who preferred to raise any excitement but that of religion. He had himself often been called upon to be present at surgical operations in the hospitals, upon the issue of which depended human lives; and as he had watched the surgeon probe a wound for hours, close upon the vital parts, when a half-inch slip either way would be instant death to the patient, his admiration for the profession had grown into awe. If the surgeon, however, at so serious a moment engaged in such solemn business, had chaffed and joked, he thought he could have hated him. In like solemn business is the minister engaged, in probing the hearts of the people, to bring to them life and heal their wounds in the balm of the holy spirit; he who chaffs when engaged in so awful a duty, is indeed a scoffer. A clown in the pulpit has mistaken his field for operations.

The Christian at Work does not look upon M. Renan, the learned French writer, with kindness. It says:

"Renan has just been delivering his Hibbert lectures in London, and devotes one of the course to what he is pleased to call the 'Sweet Galilean Vision,' which is his catch phrase for Christianity. We think Christianity and all Christian people will be glad to be spared M. Renan's compliments; a little less religious slop will be acceptable, for we don't want too much sweetness after the nauseating doses he has offered us. The truth is, to put it in plain black and white, Mr Renan is a first-class blackguard—nothing less."

SUMMER RESORT NOTES.

The Grand Union Hotel, Saratoga, opened last Saturday.

White Mountain travel sets in very soon, and according to predictions, will be very heavy.

The season at Richfield Springs begins this week. Everything indicates a long and successful season.

Nearly all the eligible rooms at the United States Hotel, Long Branch, are said to have been rented for the season.

No one should complete a summer tour without a visit to the Crossman House, Thousand Islands, Alexandria Bay, N. Y.

Musicians are in great demand for the summer resorts, but are very scarce, the best having been engaged for the large seaside resorts adjacent to the city.

Catskill has already received numerous visitors, among whom are early bridal parties. The recent rains have made the mountains, hills and dales look their best.

The summer time table of the Old Colony railroad and the Vineyard and Nantucket steamers will go into operation on the 28th. It will be mainly the same as last year.

A tower is to be built the present season on Mt. Washington high enough to give an unobstructed view in all directions. It will be for the use of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, and for visitors.

Upon the arrival of trains at Niagara the hackmen and hotel stage drivers do not yell and shout as formerly, they being forbidden to do so under a new police regulation. It is a blessed relief, and one of the many reforms that have recently been made at Niagara Falls.

The watering place season may now be regarded as fairly inaugurated. It begins auspiciously, and with every prospect of success for the hotel keepers, and with the assurance of unusual enjoyment to visitors. There is no reason to apprehend that the exodus to Europe will affect in any way the prosperity of the watering places, and many people now abroad will be home in time to participate in the closing festivities of the summer resort season.

A GOOD INTRODUCTION.

Favorite Remedy was introduced into Connecticut in 1877, at the solicitation of Rev. J. G. Smith, of Hartford, who, after having suffered for years from Chronic Liver Disease and Indigestion, obtained the medicine and was cured. This faithful pastor, thinking of the bodies as well as the souls of his people, at once commenced the advocacy of "Favorite Remedy" among them, and has been the happy instrument of saving scores of lives. Favorite Remedy is now as well and favorably known in Connecticut as along the Hudson. One dollar a bottle. All druggists sell it. Dr. David Kennedy, Proprietor, Rondout, N. Y.

HAUNTED ME.

A workingman says: "Debt, poverty and suffering haunted me for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did no good. I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have been sick a day since: and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost."—[Christian Advocate.

Newport Daily News, and the Newport Journal.

The Newport Daily News is published every afternoon (Sundays excepted), at the News building, 137 Thames street, by Davis & Pitman.

The Newport Journal is published at the same office every Saturday morning and contains a selection of the best matter in the Daily, including editorial discussions of the topics of the week, literary miscellanies and at least one good story, the latest markets and a complete and comprehensive summary of the news,—local and general. The Journal is a large 32 column paper and contains a large amount of reading matter that is valuable to readers in town or country who desire a good Newport paper, but who do not take a daily from this city.

Complaints regarding the irregular or improper delivery of either paper should be sent to the office at once.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

The Daily News, $6 per annum, or 12 cents a week, payable to carrier.

The Newport Journal will be sent to any address in the United States, postage paid, for $2 a year. A discount of 50 cents is made when the WHOLE YEAR is paid STRICTLY IN ADVANCE.

These terms are invariable.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Ordinary advertisements, $1 a square, for the first insertion, and 25 cents for each continuance. Ten lines, or less, in this type, make a square. Advertisements in reading matter, are charged for, at 50 per cent. extra and are subject to editorial revision. A discount on these rates is allowed on all advertisements ordered in the Daily for one week or longer. Funeral notices 50 cents each. Yearly advertisers are limited to their immediate business and are allowed twenty-five changes a year. The circulations of the News and Journal being necessarily distinct, an advertisement inserted in both papers will reach entirely different sets of readers. As further inducement for advertisers to use both the News and Journal, a liberal discount on the combined rates is made.

PRINTING.

Connected with the News is a large and well appointed job printing office. All orders for work in this department will be promptly filled, and at reasonable prices. The patronage of the public is respectfully solicited.

The job office has recently been supplied with new type and a new press, especially adapted to fine work. Liberal supplies of choice papers, envelopes and cards, always on hand. Prices as low as possible for first class work.

Newport Daily News.

SATURDAY, JUNE 19, 1880.

Announcements for Tomorrow.

Rev. Dr. Van Dyke of Brooklyn will preach at the United Congregational Church.

The Rev. S. B. Shaw, D. D., of Providence, will preach at Zion Church, at the morning service. There will be no evening service.

Holy communion in Bay Chapel at 8 A. M. The Sunday school will open at a quarter past nine A. M., instead of in the afternoon.

All Saints' Chapel will be open for the season. The Rev. Doctor Potter, of Grace Church, N. Y., will preach. Services at 11 A. M., or 6 P. M.

At the Second Baptist Church the pastor will preach at 10.30 A. M., and 3 P. M. Morning subject, "The Danger of being a Rich Fool"; afternoon, "Perils by Waters, or the Loss of the Narragansett" Praise and conference meeting at 7.45 P. M.

Elizabeth Comstock, one of the leading speakers among the Friends, will speak in the Friends' Meeting House in the evening, commencing at 8 o'clock, upon the colored refugees in Kansas. Having been among this people, she is thoroughly acquainted with their condition, and the address will be of much interest.

The Franklin Society of Providence make a pilgrimage to Newport today.

The vote of adjournment was the best "Act" which Congress passed at its late session.

The steamer Narragansett is to be sold at auction. There is a chance for some enterprising horse marine.

It is reported that the Kentucky delegates "cheered" for Tilden and "shouted" for Seymour. It remains to be seen for whom they will vote.

The amount of reading matter in the Newport Journal of this week is greater than was ever before set up and issued by a Newport newspaper.

Rhode Island has four female postmasters: at Jamestown, North Scituate, South Scituate and Pine Hill. Massachusetts has fifty seven.

The Republican majority in Oregon is 200, the largest ever received in that state. This may be regarded as the first gun of the Presidential campaign.

The prohibitionists have nominated Neal Dow for President, and A. H. Thompson, of Ohio for Vice President. What the initials A. H. stand for we are not informed.

There are the usual stories afloat about lying and cheating at the late world's regatta. Taken as a whole these rowing contests do not exhibit humanity in a very encouraging aspect.

President Hayes sent Congress home with a veto hanging over their heads accompanied by an argument which they dare not attempt to answer. The Senators acted like a parcel of frightened children and fled the capitol without a word to say.

The Pawtucket Chronicle, speaking with authority from first-hand, says there is no truth whatever in the story that Z. L. White, of the N. Y. Tribune, is to be transferred to the Providence Press, and adds that he has never had the subject even under consideration.

Politicians who get excited at Cincinnati are advised to go to Idaho Springs and cool off. In this delightful locality eighteen inches of snow fell one day last week.—[Boston Post.

The Cincinnati politicians will be cold enough after the election to need no journey to the mountains. Salt river rises in a hilly country, however. Bon voyage.

There is no doubt but the era of reconciliation between the North and the South has come. A Garfield ratification meeting was held in Montgomery, Alabama, when the Republicans were assaulted with rotten eggs, pistols were fired into the crowd, knives were drawn and several persons cut. There is nothing like living in a free country.

The newspapers continue to call attention to the fact that such a collision as that of the Anchoria and Queen illustrates the propriety and necessity of establishing ocean lanes by which the Atlantic steamships going in opposite directions shall take different paths. A difference of one hundred miles north and south between the lines of the eastern and western ocean passages would make very little difference in the length of the passage, while it would insure a degree of safety which is not possible so long as vessels bound in opposite directions follow the same line. The Cunard steamers follow different routes going and coming, and all lines might be required to agree upon one passage for eastern and one for western voyages. The Anchoria was sailing in company with the steamship Victoria and an officer testifies that her captain and watch officers took the whistle of the Queen for that of the Victoria, which was proceeding in the same direction as themselves.

The Graphic gives the figures as follows: The exports of fresh beef from all the ports of the United States for the eleven months ended May 31, 1880, were 75,146,183 pounds against 50,151,363 pounds in the same period last year; of salted beef, 40,536,110 against 34,035,354 pounds; of bacon and hams, 683,557,721 against 677,027,614; of butter, 33,148,596 against 31,480,522 pounds; of cheese, 104,790,283 against 125,692,912; of lard, 331,831,301 against 298,119,929; of pork, 85,506,481 against 76,624,371 pounds, and of tallow, 91,796,058 against 90,941,031 pounds. The total values were $106,891,663 against $101,851,177. The exports from all the ports for the same period: Of barley, 1,027,501 bushels against 616,080 bushels; of Indian corn, 81,931,903 against 71,660,191 bushels; of corn meal, 304,344 against 353,979 barrels; of oats, 531,115 bushels against 5,358,199; of rye, 2,758,226 against 4,256,627 bushels; of wheat, 131,815,698 against 109,432,725 bushels; of flour, 5,255,310 against 4,912,326 barrels. The total values were $247,595,101 against $182,974,661. Taking the breadstuffs and provisions together, the totals are $351,459,761 for the eleven months of this fiscal year against $285,836,138 for the same period last year—an increase of $68,653,626. We are indebted to the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics, at Washington, for these valuable and suggestive figures.

—Mrs. E. L. Comstock delivered an address last evening at the Union Congregational Church, on the noble work of aiding the colored refugees in Kansas.

—Capt. Isiah S. Ellis, late of steamer Acushnet, has been appointed second pilot on board steamer Old Colony, on the line between Newport and New York.

—Capt. Shay's sail boat Hebe, Capt. Martland's Kitty, and Capt. Denniston's Annie and Katie were at the Seekonk regatta, and took passengers along the course to see the great contest.

—The program of out-door sports on the Nations holiday has been entrusted to Mr. Jere. McCarthy who has had no little experience in that line. He has arranged a program which will bring a large number of contestants for the various prizes.

—Mr. Harris Hunter will appear for the 1000th time this evening as the "Lone Fisherman" in Evangeline, a part which is so original in its conception that it requires a great artist to illustrate its eccentricities. The Opera House bids fair to be crowded.

—Mr. W. M. Farrow at Dollymount on Thursday made the unprecedented record of 216, at three ranges viz: 74 at 800 yards; 68 at 900 yards, and 74 at 1000 yards. This is the best record ever made. Mr. Farrow is a member of the American Rifle Team.

—Perzel, from 290 Fifth avenue, New York has opened a branch in Marin block, Bellevue avenue. His store is filled with the most tempting delicacies that one can desire and are displayed so tastefully that the goods need only to be seen to meet with ready sale.

—The recent real estate transaction, in which W. S. and J. M., and W. J. Holt and Mrs. S. E. Dawley and husband were concerned, should have said that the two last named persons quit-claimed their rights in the property on private terms, there being no money considerations.

—The Providence Franklin Lyceum society made an excursion here today. The visitors numbered two hundred. They were met at the wharf by omnibuses and carriages and were taken to ride. They visited Purgatory, the beach and various other interesting localities. They returned home at half past four.

—Mlle. Jarbeau, who appears as "Evangeline" at the Opera House this evening will be remembered as the original "Hebe" in the first production of Pinafore. Her New York friends and admirers will be well represented at the play. Miss Louisa Searle, recently of the Hess English Opera Company, assumes the character of Gabriel, a part she sings delightfully.

—The commandery of Knights Templar, from Springfield, will arrive here Wednesday evening from Providence in a special boat. They will be met at the wharf by Washington commandery, of this city, and escorted to Masonic Hall on Church street, where they will be treated to a collation. They will subsequently be escorted to the Hotel Aquidneck where they will remain over night. The following morning they will take a sail around Beaver Tail and will dine at Silver Springs after which they will return to Providence.

THE SPECIAL COURSE OF SERMONS AT THE UNITARIAN CHURCH.—On Sunday, June 26th at the Unitarian Church on Mill street, the Rev. Dr. Bellows, of New York, will preach the first of a special course of sermons for the "Channing year." This course will consist of ten sermons, substantially those which have been delivered at Washington, D. C., during the past winter, and which commanded wide and deep attention. A similar course is to be given at Saratoga during July and August. The preachers for Newport will be the following in regular order: Dr. Bellows, of New York; Robert Collyer, of New York; Dr. Putnam, of Brooklyn; Rev. H. W. Foote, of King's Chapel, Boston; Dr. James Freeman Clarke, of Boston; Dr. Hosmer, of Boston; Dr. Shippen, of Boston; Dr. Peabody, chaplain of Harvard College; Dr. E. E. Hale, of Boston; and Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, who will conclude the course with her deeply interesting sermon on "Immortality." Tomorrow morning Rev. M. K. Schermerhorn will preach a sermon preparatory to this course, on "Hearing and How to Hear."

SUMMER RESORT BOOKS.

Several of the most noted summer resorts have excellent historical and descriptive guide books of which they may well be proud. We have already noticed Farrar's Illustrated Guide to Rangeley Lakes and other noted resorts, and also his work on Moosehead Lake and its vicinity. Both are published by Lee & Shephard and are very finely illustrated. We have also in hand an Illustrated Guide book for Mount Desert published by Loring, Short & Harmon of Portland. It is superbly gotten up and gives a most excellent description of that celebrated place. All these may be had at C. E. Hammett's.

PRESENTATION.—Professor Moses G. Farmer, the eminent electrician at the Torpedo station, called at the residence of Captain Thomas Shay on Kinsley wharf yesterday, and presented that popular boatman with a gold watch and chain which bore the following inscription:

"Captain Thomas Shay,
From his friend,
Moses G. Farmer,
In memory of
Oct. 29, 1873."

The gift, which we have no doubt was deserved, was a complete surprise to Capt. Shay who will have sufficient cause to remember his valued friend as long as he lives. Capt. Shay's many friends then congratulated him upon his good fortune. Capt. Shay is an honor to our boatmen and we take this occasion to thank him for the many favors which he has shown the local reporter of this paper.

Dr. John S. Billings, U. S. A., in a paper read before the American Medical Association, says:

The investigation into the flow of sewers made at the request of the Board by Col. Geo. E. Waring, has already had the important practical result of leading the authorities at Memphis to accept the system of sewerage which was within their means as adequate to the wants of the city, instead of a system which would have cost nearly five times as much.

"No Stationary Washstands or other Modern Improvements to carry Death and Destruction to Old and Young!" is the announcement made by the proprietor of one summer resort to assure people of the healthfulness of his house. We should much prefer to know that his privies, cesspool, and kitchen slops were not leaking into his well. There were no stationary washstands at Princeton, nor at Lake Mahopac, nor Jamesburg, and the facts are, that in most cases city people who are accustomed to modern improvements at home, and there enjoy good health, have to go to the country where these are lacking, to be poisoned by polluted wells and malarial surroundings. Remember bad wells are more dangerous than the so-called modern improvements.—[Sanitary Enquirer.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A LIBERAL EDUCATION.

I have great respect for the classics, and would do anything within reason to spread the knowledge of them; but a preliminary question must first be answered. What the classics are is not a matter of dispute, all agreeing that they are literary masterpieces, the study of which serves above all other studies to refine and liberalize the mind. But where are they? As to this, opinions differ.

"The Greeks, madam," replied John Randolph, when Mrs. Jellyby asked him to contribute to that suffering people—"the Greeks are at your door." And some people think the classics are in the same vicinity; dwelling, that is to say, in our mother-tongue in the sense in which the needy are at hand—not exclusively, but in such wise as to deserve our first attention. The president of Harvard College is one of these people. "I may avow," says President Eliot, "as the result of my reading and observation in the matter of education, that I recognize but one mental acquisition as the essential part of the education of a lady or a gentleman—namely, an accurate and refined use of the mother-tongue. Greek, Latin, French, German, mathematics, natural and physical science, metaphysics, history and æsthetics are all profitable and delightful, both as training and as acquisitions, to him who studies them with intelligence and love, but not one of them has the least claim to be called an acquisition essential to a liberal education, or an essential part of a sound training." He adds: "The fruit of liberal education is not learning, but the capacity and desire to learn; nor knowledge but power." This is explicit enough. For my own part, I agree to it.—[Monthly Popular Science.

RICE'S EVANGELINE.

This celebrated company will appear in the Opera House this evening. The New York Sun of a late date speaks of the company as follows:

"This excellent troupe appeared at the Opera House last night to an appreciative audience. The house was comfortably filled notwithstanding the very disagreeable state of the weather. The opera of Evangeline, although performed in this city by the same troupe on several occasions, is a favorite—its fascinating and charming music, its sparkling mirth and drollery always takes. Mlle. Jarbeau, in the character of Evangeline, was par excellence, and the hero of the play, Gabriel, was done to perfection by Miss Louisa Searle. The singing by both of these ladies was greatly applauded, and they were encored in the rendition of nearly every selection. Mr. Moses Fiske, in the role of Lo Blanc, a lawyer, is a good actor and throws much life into his part. The portly George K. Fortesque presented a mirthful object as the shy Catherine. Mr. Harry Hunter as the Lone Fisherman was all that could be desired, and his mute performances and odd grimaces called forth rounds of applause. In fact all the characters were well taken, and we find no room for criticism than awarding Rice's Combination the palm over all amusements we have had this season."

AMUSEMENTS.

The Rev. Thomas Dowling, of Cleveland, Ohio, said recently in a lecture:

"I know a Christian woman so pure, so consistent, that in heaven she will be so near the throne that I cannot catch a glimpse of her, and yet that woman unwittingly by her traditions made void the commandment of God. One day from the breast of her dead daughter she lifted a little child, fatherless and motherless. And in that hour the commandment of God came to her. 'Take this child and nurse him for me.' The child grew. She fed him; she clothed him; she loved him; she sent him to Sunday-school and to the day school. But she forgot that she was seventy years old and he was only seven. She forgot that he with his youthful restlessness wanted some thing besides the primer and the Bible. And when he grew older, and brought home his little games, she didn't believe in checkers: she didn't believe in chess: she didn't believe in cards. And what was the result? He said to me when I talked to him, 'Mr. Dowling, I must have amusement. If I bring those things home they are put in the fire.' And when he found he could not have these things at home he did just what your son is doing, though you may not know it. He went where he could have them. And ere long it was the old story, Sunday school forgotten; church forgotten. And the very woman who would have given her heart's blood for him forgotten. And when she came tottering to me on her staff, her head bent, and the gray locks falling upon her temples, throbbing in sorrow, and said, 'What shall I do for my boy?' how I longed to tell her of her mistakes; but it was too late."

THE ART OF NOT HEARING.

The art of not hearing should be taught in every well regulated family. It is full as important to domestic happiness as a cultivated ear, for which so much money and time are expended. There are so many things that it is painful to hear—many which we ought not to hear, very many which, if heard, will disturb the temper, corrupt simplicity and modesty, detract from contentment and happiness—that every one should be educated to take in or shut out sounds, according to pleasure.

If a man falls into a passion and calls us all manner of names, at the first word, we should shut our ears and hear no more. If in our quiet voyage of life we find ourselves caught in one of those domestic whirlwinds of scolding, we should shut our ears as a sailor would furl his sails, and, making all tight, send before the gale. If a hot and restless man begins to inflame our feelings, we should consider what mischief these fiery sparks may do in our magazine below, where our temper is kept, and instantly close the door.

If, as has been remarked, all the petty things said of one by heedless or ill-natured idlers were to be brought home to him, he would become a mere walking pincushion, stuck full of sharp remarks. If we would be happy, when among good men we should open our ears, when among bad men shut them. It is not worth while to hear what our neighbors say about our children, or what our rivals say about our business, or dress, or our affairs.

This art of not hearing, though not taught in the schools, is by no means unpracticed in society. We have noticed that a well-bred woman never hears a vulgar or impertinent remark. A kind of discreet deafness saves one from many insults, from much blame, from not a little connivance in dishonorable conversation.

Now that the Empress of Russia has been buried with all the honors, the next question that agitates the high and holy atmosphere of the European courts is the marriage of the disconsolate Czar to the woman who has held him in leading strings those many years, and had more to do with Russian interests than was good either for the Czar or for Russia. It is all very well to say the Empress was a religious bigot of whom the Czar wearied. It is not difficult for some men to find excuses for worrying of their wives, especially when there is a pretty girl behind the scenes. It is a bad thing, however, for society to condone such matters. A desertion is no less a desertion because it is wrought by an imperial deserter, nor is an immoral state of life rendered moral because the sinner happens to be the Czar of all the Russians and official head of the orthodox Russian Church. These imperial autocrats who are at the beck of a favorite in petticoats are rather more contemptible than men who imitate them in a far less exalted sphere of life. The Empress may have been an uncomfortable person to get along with. Possibly the Czar did not find his wife's bigotry so offensive until his eyes fell on the charms of her saucy and youthful rival. At all events, the life of the Czar has been anything but a model one, and it will only be a fitting end if he marry the woman who has so long led him. That would complete her conquest and the Emperor's disgrace.—[Graphic.

THE MAGAZINES.

THE ATLANTIC puts in the first appearance for July and is hailed with pleasure. As usual it is rich and varied in its contents. Mr. Aldrich furnishes an additional and most interesting chapter of his excellent serial. J. B. Matthews gives an entertaining sketch of Eugene Labiche, the comedy writer, who has just been elected to the French Academy. Frederic G. Mather writes of Confederation in Canada, and comes to the conclusion that "the tendency of Canada is to depart from English denomination," but that this tendency does not by any means argue "that they will finally be up alongside the United States." Incidents of the Capture of Richmond, from papers of the late General Shepley; Wintering on Etna, by A. P. Langley; Reminiscences of Washington during the Van Buren administration; Records of W. M. Hunt, by Henry C. Angell; King Lear, by R. G. White, and a good array of poetry and literary notices, altogether make a very acceptable number.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE for July, is an exceedingly popular number. One of its strongest features is the beginning of a new serial novel, by Henry James, Jr., entitled Washington Square. The number opens with a brief but excellent article on the late Wm. M. Hunt, by Miss Maria R. Oakey, with a masterly portrait of the artist, and three reproductions of his characteristic paintings. Mr. A. A. Hayes, Jr., contributes a description of the old Santa Fé Trail—full of romantic adventures, with some very striking illustrations by Rogers. Thomas Knox has a paper on Summer Clubs on Great South Bay. The most popular article in the number, probably, is Mrs. Oliphant's interesting biographical sketch of Queen Victoria. Five portraits of the Queen, at different periods, are given; also, portraits of the Queen's and of Prince Albert's father and mother, of the Prince of Wales and the Princess Royal as little children, with other interesting illustrations. Another paper of much historical interest is Princes and Potentates of 1810, with eight portraits. Richard T. Ely contributes a suggestive and valuable paper on American Colleges and German Universities; and Dr. John W. Draper's paper, entitled Franklin's Place in the Science of the Last Century, contains a volume of curious and important information relating not only to Franklin, but also to all the most important scientists of the eighteenth century.

WILLIAM M. HUNT.

Fifty-five years old at his death, and looking older for his magnificent white beard and his bald head, which was so delicately modelled that it could well afford the display, he was really young in heart, though life had borne hardly upon him: young in mind, with that youth which proved him truly an artist, and without which no man's perceptions are keen enough and unsophisticated enough to bring him properly into the world of art. One cannot look at his work, stretching over the space of thirty years, without feeling that the quality was not only not exhausted, but perhaps only half expressed. One apprehends a rich reserve.

Hunt stands in a small and radiant company. Here in his own country there are but three names that may be spoken with his, though we go back through all the years since we have had a country or any art, and though we do not forget the occasional brilliant successes of Elliott, and the subtle, sensitive, but untrained hand of Inman. He used to say, "If I had lived abroad I might have been a painter." He has needed a public. Sympathetic in temperament, not self-poised, living in the sunshine of his fellow-creatures affections only, he has had a faithful little band of followers, while the wide public have slept unconscious that they had him in their midst.

To the young artistic life of America, Hunt has been the strongest influence. To-day it places flowers before his portrait—that canvas which holds his last brush mark—and it speaks his name to the tender generation that springs up behind it. In Boston he has been the head of art feeling and thought. He gave his life for it. He brought to it the wisdom of his European masters. If the pupils whose work today does him honor are but two or three, it is to be said that people of talent are, alas! not common, and cannot be made, only born, and that there is not one of his little army followers whose life was not enriched by what they learned of him.—[Maria R. Oakey, in Harper's Magazine for June.

DANIEL WEBSTER'S HUMOR.

Daniel Webster was a grim humorist. On one occasion, when a Senator who was jerring another for some pedantry said, "The honorable gentleman may proceed to quote from Crabb's Synonyms, from Walker and Webster—"Not from Walker and Webster," exclaimed the Senator from Massachusetts, "for the authorities may disagree!" At another time, when he was speaking on the New York fire bill, the Senate clock suddenly began to strike, and after it had struck continuously for about fourteen or fifteen times Mr. Webster stopped, and said to the presiding officer, "The clock is out of order, sir,—I have the floor." The occupant of the chair looked rebukingly at the refractory time-piece, but in defiance of the officers and rules of the House it struck about forty before the sergeant-at-arms could stop it: Mr. Webster standing silent, while every one else was laughing.

On another occasion, while Mr. Webster was addressing the Senate in presenting a memorial, a clerical-looking person in one of the galleries arose and shouted, "My friends, the country is on the brink of destruction! Be sure that you act on correct principles. I warn you to act as your consciences may approve. God is looking down upon you, and if you act on correct principles you will get safely through." He then deliberately stepped back, and retired from the gallery before the officers of the Senate could reach him. Mr. Webster was of course surprised at this extraordinary interruption, but when the shrill voice of the enthusiast had ceased, he coolly resumed his remarks, saying, "As the gentleman in the gallery has concluded, I will proceed."—[Atlantic for June.

ECONOMY.

Economy is one of the least understood words in our language. It is not economy to starve the mind to stuff the stomach. It is not economy to "scrimp" and pinch and slave to keep up a style of dress or living to deceive other people's eyes. It is not economy to put half the cost of women's or children's garments into "style" and trimming, at the sacrifice of good, honest, lasting material. It is not economy to buy poor things because they are "cheap." It is not economy to go without flannels to wear laces, nor to give up comfort and possible health for the sake of fashion. It is not economy to save money on necessities to spend on "tom-foolery:" always remembering that necessities, to a soul that lives over six feet above the earth in its aspirations, mean a good many things besides what we shall eat, drink and wear.

We are informed that everything is in readiness for the opening of the "Tent on the Beach," which takes place on Monday. We advise all to call down and give this fine undertaking a good send off. Fish's military band will be in attendance.

EMULSION
COD LIVER OIL!
—WITH—
Pepsine and Quinine

offer this preparation of Cod Liver Oil to the profession, in the confident hope that it will supply a pleasant and efficient method of administering that invaluable remedy.

It is unnecessary at this date to refer to the very high character which has been borne by the Caswell Cod Liver Oil since its first introduction; it is sufficient to state that this oil is used in this new preparation.

The proportion of oil held in the emulsion is fifty per cent.; the finest Turkey Gum Arabic and the purest White Sugar are the other ingredients employed in its manufacture.

The addition of Pepsine and Quinine is made with the view of enabling the most delicate stomach to retain and digest the oil.

None Genuine unless Bearing the Signature of the Proprietors.

PREJUDICE KILLS.
"Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery under the care of several of the best (and some of the worst) physicians, who gave her disease various names but no relief, and now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had poohed at for two years before using it. We earnestly hope and pray that no one else will let their sick suffer as we did, on account of prejudice against so good a medicine as Hop Bitters."—[The Parents.—Telegram.

A PUBLIC DUTY.
We are not in the habit of puffing any sort of patent medicines in our columns, for the business of a newspaper is to let people know what is going on in the world, and not to lend aid to what may be an imposition. But we happen to know Dr. David Kennedy of Rondout, N. Y., and can personally testify to the excellence of the medicine which the doctor calls "Favorite Remedy." And if a word of ours will persuade anybody to use it, and thus find relief from suffering, no professional etiquette shall hinder us from saying that word. For diseases of the blood, kidneys and bowels it has no equal. We would not be without it for five times the dollar that it costs.—[Daily Times.

SATURDAY, JUNE 19, 1880.

A Woman's Influence.

So you've allowed yourself to be bewitched by that little siren, Miriam Tolbert, "I'm told, Dukeheart?"

"I'm afraid I can't contradict the report," said the major.

His companion laughed and shrugged his shoulders. They were having a charming little dinner at the club, with some half dozen other convivial souls.

"See here, now, old fellow," he continued, as he uncorked a second bottle of old port and filled the major's glass to the brim, "you're fond of your glass, I think, as well as the rest of us—your old port, your sparkling champagne, your brandy, old rye and all the rest of them. Isn't it so?"

"Couldn't do without them. My dear, what are you driving at?" said Dukeheart, tossing off his glass.

"I'll tell you, major. You acknowledge that you are bewitched? Very well, now, do you know what your pretty siren is?"

"Of course I do. She's the prettiest woman in Boynton."

"Granted; but she's something else. Dukehart, my poor fellow, she's a reformer, an out and out temperance advocate. Did you ever notice that coquettish little blue ribbon she wears just above the heart? Well, that's the badge of her order. She's a temperance reformer, old fellow; and if you marry her she'll reform you, just as sure as your name's Tom Dukehart.

The major laughed, and all his comrades joined him. He was the leading spirit of the club, a wild, dashing, handsome young fellow, rich, gay and just the least bit too fond of his glass.

"Have your laugh out, boys," he said, pleasantly; "but it all amounts to nothing. I'm bewitched, I'll confess, but not to the extent you imagine. If pretty Miss Tolbert has a fancy for the blue ribbon crusade, well and good, but she won't catch me in that trap. I'm too old a bird to peck at that sort of chaff, you know."

"Ah, but we don't know," cried Eastham, "do we, boys? I'll lay a wager of almost any amount that in less than a month you'll sport a blue ribbon in your button-hole, and roll up your eyes in holy horror at the sight of a demijohn."

"Done," cried the major, pushing forward his empty glass; "put up your stakes, comrades. And I lay a wager that I make my pretty charmer haul down her colors before she is a week older. What do you say?"

"Done! done!" cried half a dozen voices in chorus, and then the stakes were put up, and the glasses clinked merrily, and the laughter became uproarious.

* * * * * *

"My dear Miriam, I really hope you have no intention of encouraging Major Dukehart?" said Miriam's mother, as that young lady was dressing for Mrs. Grover's party. "He is a handsome, agreeable person, I'll admit, but so very wild, and fond of his glass, too, I have been told. His attentions are becoming quite marked of late. My dear child, pray take my advice and discourage him at once."

Miriam went to her mother's chair and kissed her.

"Don't worry, mamma, love," she said, in her soft, sweet voice; "I shall do nothing wrong. Perhaps I may be able to win Major Dukehart over to my way of thinking."

"I'm afraid not, Miriam; the safer way will be to let him alone."

A wistful look crossed the girl's beautiful face.

"I cannot agree with you, mamma," she replied. "When we have influence it is surely our duty to use it for the good of others. But do not distress yourself; you may trust me."

"Yes, my pet," said the mother, kissing her daughter's cheek, "but these handsome men are so enticing, and a woman's heart so weak."

"And a woman's influence so strong. You must not forget that, mother," said Miriam.

* * * * * * *

"Miss Tolbert, won't you drink a philopena with me?"

It was Major Dukeheart who asked this question, laying one hand on Miriam's arm, while he held in the other a little crystal goblet filled with sparkling wine.

Miriam turned and looked up at him, and her dove eyes lit. The handsome pleasant face of the tall soldier was growing very dear to her girlish heart, and the touch of his hand on her arm made all her pulses bound and flutter.

"I would like to oblige you," she said, with her sweet winning smile, "but there is a matter of right and wrong involved, you see, and I'm very sure you would not desire me to do wrong, Major Dukehart?"

"Dear me, Miss Tolbert," began the major, feeling sure of winning his wager, but the touch of her soft fingers on his hand silenced him and set his heart to thumping like a triphammer.

"Let me take the glass," she said, persuasively; "we will not drink the poison which has driven so many noble souls to ruin, and has broken so many fond women's hearts. I will throw it out of the window, and then we'll eat as many philopenas as you please. I've a pocket full of almonds, and you'll find them much nicer than this. Major Dukehart, may I take the glass?"

The major let her take it. It seemed to him that he could not have refused her if his life depended on it.

She turned to the open window and tossed out the sparkling wine.

"There, now," she said. "Oh, how I wish I could empty the whole world of the curse as I have empted this glass. Now, major," linking one white hand in his arm, and putting the other in her pocket, "I'm ready for the philopena. See what large almonds; every shell contains a double nut."

The major ate the philopena and lost his heart irretrievably at once and the same time. She was so fair, so sweet, so womanly and winning, he had no power, and indeed no inclination to resist her. And that pretty blue ribbon on the shoulder of her white dress was so becoming.

Major Dukehart forgot the club, forgot his boon companions, forgot his wager, forgot everything but the dove eyes and smiling, girlish face beside him, and before the evening was over he "popped the question."

Miriam, sitting under the trailing vines, with the moonlight on her fair, young face, listened to his ardent words with downcast eyes and blushing cheeks.

"Yes, I love you," she answered frankly, when he had finished. "I am sure that I shall never love any one else half so well—"

The major leaped to his feet, with a cry of rapture, and would have caught her to his breast, but she drew back.

"No, no," she said, "you must hear me out. I love you, as I have said, but I cannot consent to become your wife unless you join my order," and she touched the blue knot upon her shoulder. "I believe in the temperance reform, and I intend to labor to promote it as long as I live. A husband and wife, to be truly happy, must be of one heart and mind. I cannot come over to your way, major, so if you really are in earnest you must come over to mine."

The young man was a little startled at this firm stand on the part of such a yielding, tender, womanly little creature. He stood irresolute, a hot flush rising in his cheeks.

"I am not a drunkard," he began, stammering and embarrassed; "there is no need of all this—"

"Perhaps not," said Miriam, her hand clasping his arm, "but we want you over on our side. We want your influence, your help, the power of your name. When your friends hear that Major Dukehart has joined the good cause of temperance and Christianity, they will be influenced to do likewise."

"They will laugh at me for a fool," thought Dukehart, and the girl's bright eyes read the thought in his irresolute face.

She came closer to him, so close that her hair rippled across his shoulder.

"You are a soldier and a brave man," she said, her dove eyes flashing. "Do not fear the ridicule of those whom you should labor to save. It is a little thing I ask you to give up for my sake; I would sacrifice much more to please you. Do you really love me? Are we to walk side by side and hand in hand all the rest of our lives? Then you must decide now and for all coming time. Which will you give up, the wine-cup or the hand of the woman who loves you?"

"I'll give up the whole world for you," he said hoarsely, and caught her to his heart.

She let him hold her thus a moment, and then she drew back and disengaged the blue knot from her shoulder.

"May I fasten it on your breast?" she asked, looking up at him with quivering lips and tear filled eyes.

He stooped down and kissed her.

"You have conquered me," he said, "yes, fasten it on."

And with shining eyes she fastened it on his breast.

* * * * *

"Boys, look at Dukehart, will you! He wears the blue badge of the order!"

Every man in the club-room leaped to his feet as the major entered with the blue ribbon in his button-hole.

"Dukehart, old fellow, what does it mean? Didn't I tell you how it would turn out? I said Miss Tolbert would reform you. You've lost your wager."

The young man smiled in his old, good-humored fashion, as these exclamations, mingled with uproarious laughter assailed him.

"Yes, boys, I've lost my wager," he said. Eastham's words have come true. The woman I love has reformed me. She would not come over to me and I had to go over to her. And now, comrades," he added, his fine eyes growing misty with tender feeling, "how is it to be with us? We've spent many a pleasant hour together, but we've come to a park in the road of life just here. Will you come along with me or must we shake hands and part?"

They laughed at him, and shook hands with him and he went his way.

A month later he made Miriam his wife. A year later found him an eloquent and energetic leader in the good cause of temperance, with all his old club companions clustering around him. And all this came about through the influence of one brave woman.

Skillful Surgery!

Removal of Urinary Calculi by the Knife.

A LUCKY MAN.

Mr. Simeon Tietsall, of Saugerties, N. Y., has been treated for seven years by various physicians for what they call Stricture of the Urethra, without benefit. He finally consulted Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who found his trouble to be Urinary Calculi or Stones in the Bladder. The Doctor at once removed the foreign bodies with the knife and then gave his great Blood Specific, "Favorite Remedy," to prevent their reformation. The entire treatment was eminently successful, and Mr. Tietsall's recovery was rapid and perfect.

While "Favorite Remedy" is a specific in all Kidney and Bladder diseases it is equally valuable in cases of Bilious Disorders, Constipation of the Bowels, and all the class of ills apparently inseparable from the constitutions of women. Try it. Your druggist has it, and its cost is only one dollar a bottle. The lucky man is he who puts this advice in practice. Don't forget the name and address, Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. The Doctor would have it understood that, while he is engaged in the introduction of his medicine, "Favorite Remedy," he still continues the practice of his profession, but confines himself exclusively to Office practice. He treats all diseases of a chronic character, and performs all the minor and capital operations of surgery.

PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

No. 76 State St., opp. Kilby St., Boston,

Secures patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded at Washington. No agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions. R. H. EDDY, Solicitor of Patents.

Testimonials.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse.

CHAS. MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"Inventors cannot employ a person more trustworthy or more capable of securing for them an early and favorable consideration at the patent office. EDMUND BURKE, late Commissioner of Patents."

BOSTON, October 19, 1870.

R. H. EDDY, Esq.—Dear Sir: You procured for me, in 1840, my first patent. Since then you have acted for and advised me in hundreds of cases, and procured many patents, reissues and extensions. I have occasionally employed the best agencies in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, but I still give you almost the whole of my business, in your line, and advise others to employ you. Yours truly, GEORGE DRAPER.
